

Press release Challenger Aerospace Systems

Friday, September 25, 2020, Challenger Aerospace Systems: acquires the assets of HK Machine, of Cameron Park California, the company will become part of Challenger Precision Machine and is a full-service machine shop with the ability to service all your machined parts needs. With a wide variety of both CNC turning and milling machine centers, our customers can consolidate their supply base under one roof. In addition, our customer service team tracks your orders daily, providing you with production updates, while also actively looking for opportunities to reduce pricing and improve lead time through altering the order structure. The team can also advise you on custom purchasing programs that decrease supplier management duties and potentially reduce costs.
